

AUDIT FEES SURVEY 2022

The background of the lower half of the cover is a dense field of 3D-rendered numbers (0-9) in various sizes and orientations. The numbers are colored in shades of blue and white, with a bright light source from the right creating a strong glow and casting shadows, giving the scene a sense of depth and movement.

UNDERSTANDING AUDIT FEES AND NON-AUDIT SERVICE FEES, 2013-2020

ABOUT THIS ANALYSIS

How much does audit cost? How does this compare to the fees companies pay for other professional services provided by statutory auditors? These questions are the starting point for this report. But when talking about listed companies in different jurisdictions and of all sizes, absolute figures may not shed meaningful comparative insight. Accordingly, the purpose of this analysis is to quantify audit fees as a percentage of corporate revenue—allowing us to better compare information across a range of mega-cap, large-cap, mid-cap, small-cap, and micro-cap entities trading on US, Canadian, and European stock exchanges from 2013 to 2020.

Since we last published this analysis for 2013-2018, we have all witnessed the economic shocks of the COVID-19 pandemic, which impacted corporate revenues in calendar year 2020 and introduced some volatility into the series of fee data presented. Also, this study includes, for the first time, analysis of fees paid to statutory audit firms for services other than audit (i.e., “Non-Audit Service Fees”). The data included in this report, prepared by Audit Analytics, is presented by population, jurisdiction, company size, market, and industry.

OUR FINDINGS INDICATE:

Meaningful differences across jurisdictions and industries

Relatively higher costs—relative to revenues—for audits and services incurred by smaller-size companies

Differences across jurisdictions in the level of fees paid for specific types of non-audit services

A flat or declining trend in non-audit service fees across jurisdictions

As audit quality and reform continue to be a focus for the accountancy profession, companies, and policymakers alike, IFAC hopes this data can inform evidence-based discussions about the cost and quality of audits and their function as value-added services.

The audit fee as a percentage of revenue for all companies are then averaged to calculate average audit fee as a percentage of revenue.
